General Debility

Day in and out there is that feeling of weakness that makes a burden of itself.

Food does not strengthen.

Sleep does not refresh.

It is hard to do, hard to bear, what should be easy,—vitality is on the ebb, and the whole system suffers.

For this condition take

Hood's Sarsaparilla

It vitalizes the blood, gives vigor and tone to all the organs and functions, and is positively unequalled for all run-down or debilitated conditions.

BASEBALL

Ballardvale suffered their third defeat of the season at the hands of the T. R. & T's at North Billerica, by a score of 23 to 1. Ballardvale had an off day and the game was lost in the second inning when Ballardvale bunched their errors and aided by fierce hitting, T. R. & T. scored 13 runs.

Murphy pitched a good game striking out 13 men. The series now stands a tie each team having won a game. As Ballardvale played without two of their regular men they expect to stand a good show of winning their deciding game. The score:

There is a humorous side to the Boston Herald, which has recently been made quite prominent in the Sunday Herald. No less than seven clever humorists are now contributing to its columns. First is the clever Editorial paragrapher, who ranks all paragraphers, then comes the brilliant Chatterer. "Joe" Smith, the clever satirist deals out advice to our statesmen and captains of industry, McClusky raps out a little philosophy and patriotism, John Kendrick Bangs talks of things in a way to amuse, Hank Spink brings up to view the life which the city folks remember and the country folks enjoy, and Merriman, in his Letters from a Son to his Self-Made Father, has made a decided hit. But these are not all—Wallace Goldsmith, in his clever caricatures, contributes much which tends to lighten life, while O. P. Williams, in his cartoons, gives a daily lesson in politics.

Charlemagne Tower the American ambassador to Russia, was talking at his Atlantic City cottage about the Russian moujik.

"This naive fellow," he said, "is something like a boy and something like an Irishman. He is, as a rule, very simple, very kind.

"A typical moujik entered one day a railroad station. He approached the agent and asked when a certain train would leave for a certain place. The agent told him distinctly, and, seeming satisfied he departed.

"But a moment later he was back again. And again he asked the agent the same question.

"'Why,' the agent exclaimed, 'I told you that only a minute ago.'

"'You did, truly,' the moijik answered, 'but it isn't myself that wants to know this time. It's my mate outside.'"

AN EXPEDIENT.

Henry Guy Carlton, whose stuttering is famous tells a story of the late Williams Travers, whose stuttering was notorious. It is that Travers once got in line at the window of a railroad depot and, when his turn came, began:

"Gi-gi-give m-m-me a t-t-t-ticket for -for-for—"

"Oh! get down to the foot of the line" impatiently yelled the busy ticket seller. "Perhaps by the time I've waited on the rest you'll know what you want."

Travers meekly retired, and when he reappeared at the window 10 minutes later, he said:

"Just s-s-send m-m-me by—by freight."

"What do you mean? Why do you say that?" asked the ticket seller.

"Well, you-s-s-see," explained Travers, "I can't express myself.

ELIHU ROOT'S HEMLOCK TREE.

When Elihu Root, now secretary of war, was a lad he spent many hours in the company of his father scouring the fields and woodland for strange plants, vegetables shrubs and the seedlings of trees. The elder Root was a professor in Hamilton college, and there stands today among the buildings of that college the house where Professor Oren Root lived and where Secretary Root was born. This building is now known as Knox hall or Cabinet hall.

Secretary Root's father had extensive gardens. There was a profusion of well trimmed seed beds, and the professor experimented with, growing trees as well as wild flowers and wild vegetables, which he found in the woods surrounding his home.

Many times Secretary Root, when a boy, in journeying homeward after a pilgrimage in the woods and through the fields with his father, passed along the brow of a hill on the old Kirkland farm, and they stopped there beneath the shade of a thrifty hemlock, whence they could view the hills lying on the other side of the valley of the Oriskany Creek trace the waters of the stream for many miles as they gleamed among the trees on their way to the Mohawk in the north, while in the far landscape they could distinguish the dim outposts of the North woods, which they have come to call the Adirondacks. The vistas afforded from the top of College Hill, the home of Hamilton College, were both charming and extensive, but the ground upon which the hemlock stood and they often rested was a bit higher than the summit of College Hill, and commanded a wider prospect of the surrounding country.

The hemlock tree and its location made a deep impression on the fancies of the elder Root, and he was wont to exclaim as he visited the spot

"I wish I owned that hemlock tree!"

Professor Root died but his boys continued to make Kirkland and College Hill their place of residence. They were graduated from Hamilton College, and Oren Root Jr., became professor there, as was his father before him. Elihu Root became secretary of war, and as in the lives of the boys there were many changes affecting the growth and development of Kirkland and the village of Clinton. Throughout all, however, the hemlock tree was spared and now, through the purchase of three farms adjoining the Root homestead, Elihu Root becomes the owner of the ground and this hemlock tree which, to say the least, has had a rather romantic connection with the Roots.—Boston Post.

CHATS WITH WOMEN.

Those who have a taste for optimistic philosophy will be glad to know of a work in one volume by M. Metchnikoff, called Etudes sur a Nature Humaine. M. Metchnikoff, as most people know, is one of the directors of the Pasteur Institute. He tells in the simplest and clearest language that all our troubles come from out want of harmony (desharmonie), and our fear of death is caused because we do not know how to live, by the atrophy of our physical and intellectual organism. He tells how this can be avoided, and how foolish we are to poison our system by our total disregard of hygienic food. He ascribes all the ills we suffer from to the abuse of alcohol, insufficiently cooked meats, highly seasoned condiments, birds and cheese in an "advanced" state, that we cannot digest.

Acording to him we become old before our time, but if our body and our mind were properly fed we should live long and happily! We should die from no organic disease, but naturally and contentedly. It is a book full of respect for those who do not think as he does, and of pity for the human race, and if we do not agree with all he says it is nevertheless a work that should be read. From some points of view there is much to be discussed, and it must be remembered that it is a book written by a man of science and not by a man of faith.

If women would only bear in mind that they may need the world's good word themselves some day, they would be more careful in what they say, and how they say it. Charity is of thought as well as deed. It is not restricted to the feeding of the hungry, and the clothing of the poor. It is as much needed among the rich as among any other class. The woman who would be a pattern of her sex will cultivate a still tongue; if she would be a blessing to humanity she will temper justice with mercy, and, above al', she will keep her verdicts to herself when she sits in judgment on her friends.

One of the hardest lessons for a mother to learn, and she has many to con in this age of changes and progress, is that the manners and habits, and even language, of the younger generation, are not those which she was taught were essential to a gentlewoman. In fact, she must realize, if she would retain her influence and authority with her older children, that if the essentials were preserved, if her daughters are truthful, reliable and good, the rest, however important it may seem to her, is, after all, immaterial. Conventionality must be regarded as a matter of fashion, and she must perforce leave such matters to the young people themselves, who are, after all, pretty sure not to offend public opinion, only the public opinion that they value (as is only natural) is that voiced by their own contemporaries, while that of older people is necessarily somewhat old fashioned.

SAT ON FRESH PAINT.

At the June polo games of the Philadelphia Country club George Gould, like all the other players, wore breeches of white duck. On the porch of the club house he said, one afternoon, looking down at his breeches with a smile:

"Duck trousers always remind me of an incident that happened aboard a battleship last summer. The battleship was one of those that lay off Newport, and I was visiting it. The day was fine, and a multitude of little boats were circling about, bent on seeing all that could be seen.

"There was a young officer on board who must have sat down accidently on a fresh painted bench or something of that kind, for his white duck trousers were very dirty. He, though, was not aware of it. He moved among the ladies gallantly, and his trousers were an eyesore. Suddenly someone on one of the little boats below caught sight of them, and in a stentorian Irish voice shouted:

"'Och, misther, wouldn't your ducks be better for a swim?'"

Mrs. Mollie Allen of South Fork, Ky., says she has prevented attacks of cholera morbus by taking Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets when she felt an attack coming on. Such attacks are usually caused by indigestion and these Tablets are just what is needed to cleanse the stomach and ward off the approaching attack. Attacks of bilious colic may be prevented in the same way. For sale by E. M. & W. A. Allen.

LOWELL EXPLOSION INQUEST NEXT TUESDAY.

An inquest into the death of Robert Galloway, a victim of the recent explosion, at Lowell will open in the Lowell police court Tuesday afternoon, Aug. 18.

This announcement was made by Judge Hadley this forenoon. Judge Hadley received the report on Galloway's death from Medical Examiner Irish this morning and in reply to the Sun reporter's question his honor said that the inquest would be private.

There will be no other inquests except into the death of Galloway. Judge Hadley said that the one inquest would determine the whole.

District Attorney Sanderson or his representatives will conduct the inquest.

The news that the inquest is to be private, even the reporters excluded, will not be considered very favorably by the general public.

The keenest of interest is centered in all that has to do with placing the responsibility of the explosion, and the inquest is the first important move.

As a general proposition it would seem that the inquest should be public.

DEALINGS WITH CREDITORS.

Even in his days of prosperity Whistler was perpetually in debt. He had no head for money matters. Here is the way he once tamed a London bailiff who had a bill against him to collect:

When the officer first appeared he wore his hat in the drawing room and smoked and spat all over the house. Mr. Whistler soon settled that. He went out into the hall, armed himself with a cane and jauntily whacked his visitor's hat off. The man was so far surprised that he forgot to be angry. One morning when Whistler was shaving, a message was brought to him that the bailiff wished to speak to him.

"Very well, send him up," said Whistler, but he kept on shaving. "Now then, what do you want?" he continued as ht eman appeared.

"I want my money sir," was the reply.

"What money?"

"My possession money, sir."

"What, haven't they given it to you?"

"No sir, it's you that has to give it to me."

"Oh, the deuce I have." This with one of his fiendish laughs.

"Well, I think it's very hard, sir," snivelled the man. "I have my own family to keep and my own rent to pay."

"I'll tell you what I advise you to do," returned Whistler, as he pushed his caller out of the room, "you should do as I do, and have a man in yourself."—Boston Post.

A FLESH-FORMING FOOD

If Mi-o-na Does Not Build up Good, Healthy Flesh E. M. & W. A. Allen Will Return Your Money

Of all the remedies in E. M. & W. A. Allen's popular drug store there are very few they are willing to sell with a guarantee to refund the money if they do not give satisfaction.

Mi-o-na, the famous flesh-forming food and cure for stomach troubles has done such wonders among their customers that E. M. & W. A. Allen are now advertising, "If Mi-o-na does not give a noticeable gain in weight, if it fails to cure indigestion and all stomach troubles come back to our store and get your money."

Anyone who has been losing flesh or who has always been too thin, should use Mi-o-na. Thinness and emaciation are signs that the food is not properly assimilated and that you do not get the nourishment you should.

Mi-o-na mingles with the food you eat, aids its assimilation, tones up and strengthens the digestive organs, and puts the whole system in proper physical condition; it saves the digestive organs from exhaustive work. By its use the elements needed to put flesh on your bones will be selected from the food, and each day will show a noticeable gain in weight.

Commence the use of Mi-o-na today at their risk. If it increases your weight and cures you of indigestion, it will cost you 50c; if it does not, E. M. & W. A. Allen will pay for the treatment themselves and return your money to you.

SENATOR PLATT'S TOMBSTONE JOKE.

Senator Thomas C. Platt, on his 70th birthday was talking to a group of reporters at Manhattan beach about a certain politician.

"To land him bait your hook with flattery," said the Senator. "He is an egoist. His worst enemy, by praising the cut of his coat, the architecture of his house, his skill at steering a boat or making a speech, his grace in lifting his hat to a woman—his worst enemy by praising him or anything that concerns him can twist him around his finger.

"Yes," the senator concluded, "he is an egoist; a man who would be glad to die for the pleasure of looking up from his grave and reading the stonecutters's puff on his tombstone."—Boston Post.

DUNN'S REVIEW OF THE WEEK.

It has been eventful week in the stock market, more failures occuring, while prices fell to the lowest point since Janary, 1901. Yet there has been no corresponding demoralization in trade or industry. From an average of $116.27 last September the sixty active railway shares have fallen about $21, and it is not surprising that a few concerns have found it impossible to meet their obligations. Considering the great shrinkage in market value of securities, it is evidence of solidity in the business world that suspensions are not more numerous, and most of those thus far reported were due to pool operations in specialties rather than general weakness. Trade advices from nearly every section continue to show as favorable conditions as a year ago, and in many lines the volume of transactions has increased. Jobbers report fall business opening with excellent prospects, and manufacturing plants are well occupied, with the exception of cotton mills. Distribution of merchandise is so heavy that railway equipement already proves inadequate, although crops are not the factor that they will be in a few weeks. Earnings for July exceeded last year's by 12.7 per cent and those of 1901 by 20.2 per cent. On th whole, news from the farms is less favorable, but no serious curtailment is assured, and many sections make very bright reports. A decline of 1.5 per cent. in the cost of commodities during July is evidence that prices are less inflated, since the change was mainly in meats and other food which have been ruling at an abnormal position. Foreign commerce for the last week at this port shows gains of $1,842,278 in imports and $2,335,186 in exports, as compared with the same week last year. Bank exchanges at New York were 9.1 per cent. smaller than last year and 6.1 per cent. less than in 1901, but at other leading cities there were gains of 4.5 and 11.4 per cent., respectively.

Consumption of iron and steel is on a large scale, and in many departments the past week has witnessed the sikning of numerous contracts, but there is a tendency to delay purches beyond early needs. This conservatism is not surprising in view of the uncertainty regarding the security and financial markets, together with considerable interruption to structural work through labor controversies. The fate of consumption and the modgrate size of oders, however, indicate that stocks are running low, which encourages furnacemen and mill operators to hold quotations fairly steady. A moderate tonnage of pig iron has been ordered, and in partly finished products the best feature just now is the bidding of agricultural implement makers. More pig iron was imported during July than anticipated, but the German billets are still offering at Pittsburg, but the domestic makers announce their intention of meeting foreign competition. There is less pressure for tin plates, the peculiar weather extending the canning season and giving more time for delivery of cans. There is full occupation in all branches of this industry and in merchant pipe also the mills have full order books for many months.

No change is noticed in the attitude of cotton goods buyers, who appear determined to postpone business until the readjustment of prices for raw material. Owing to the gradual reduction in mill stocks there is a similar disposition to delay undertaking new contracts, and the result is a further addition to idle machinery. In view of the comparative steadiness of retail prices and the activity in dry goods trading at many points, it is evident that stocks in other than first-hands wer larger than was believed when the speculative advance began. Although jobbers report bright prospects for fall trade, it is remarkable that they make so little effort to secure forward deliveries. In the purchases were made for Red Sea account. Irregular distribution of orders is reported in woolens, some lines being withdrawn while others make little progress. An increase in number of buyers in encouraging, and in the aggregate sales are fully up to normal. Healthy conditions contine in footwear, some grades advancing in price, while New England shops are ot able to accept orders for delivery in several months.

Some reaction from the highest price of the season has occurred in cotton, yet at one time during the past week the controlling interest offered fifteen cents for 5,000 bales without securing a bale. This testifies to the complete control of available stocks and also to the fact that speculators on the short side appreciated the impossibility of meeting contracts. Port receipts and exports are insignificant and crop reports sufficiently contradictory to warrant the extreme caution exhibited in the speculative markets. Wheat has deeloped strength through small receipts at primary markets which aggregated only 3,950,951 bushels, against 6,916,955 bushels a year ago. Foreign crop reports are less satisfactory, which gave further support to quotations that already ruled about ten cents higher than at this time last year. While the corn movement is heavier than a year ago, it does not show the wide margin that was seen earlier in the season. Receipts amounted to 1,967,504 bushels, aginst 1,612,645, and Atlantic coast exports of 361,416 bushels compare with 65,812 a year ago. Shipments of wheat, flour included, from all ports of the United States were 2,690,532 bushels, against 3,676,939 bushels a year ago.

Insolvency returns for the month of July appear ominous when considered in the aggregate, especially if comparison is made with previous months or the corresponding month in preceding years. Liabilities of all bankrup concerns reached the exceptionally high sum of $16,751,245, far exceeding any other July for a decade. The average for the nine years immediately preceding was about $9,000,000. Of course a large share of the month's defaulted liabilities was provided by a few large brokerage suspensions, but there was also a building concern that failed for a considerable amount, and twenty-two firms defaulted for over $100,000 each, supplying $10,911,304, or two-thirds of the total losses for the 915 failures. Aside from the merely speculative disasters, it is evident that the midsummer industrial house cleaning revealed many weak spots.

TIMELY TEXTILE TOPICS.

Private advices from Philadelphia where the great textile strike was inaugurated 10 weeks ago, indicate that the backbone of that strike is practically broken. Last Saturday afternoon 20,000 of the help through their excutive board gave out that they intended to start work on Monday morning, leaving it is estimated about 60,000 from whom nothing has so far been heard. It will be remembered that the operatives asked for a reduction of from 60 to 55 hours per week, and in some cases an advance of 10 per cent. The manufacturers did not seem to feel that they could go as far as that, hence the strike. Those who have decided to return are connected with the broad and narrow loom work.

Firth and Foster, dyers and finishers, who are well and favorably known in this city by reason of their dyeing and finishing for quite a number of firms believe that they will start with almost a full complement this morning, being henceforth able to take up their old trade in the old-time quantities. As was stated in the Telegram 10 weeks ago the outcome of this strike was watched with much anxiety by many here, as elsewhere, not only in the mills but also in the finishing houses.

Business in the local dyeing and finishing house increased perceptibly much of which will stay, affording those houses a wider range and better opportunities to show what may be done in their respective lines. At the same time some of the New York commission houses were timid about handling goods finished in strange houses, prefering to wait a while rather than run any risk, hence large accumulations of woven goods were the result, making it rather hard to work against such a difficulty. At one time there was some talk of closing plants until the end of the strike. This was happily avoided but large curtailment was an absolute necessity. That the local houses will feel the start up in Philadelphia to a certain extent is without question but it may be reasoned fairly that they know now other things than before the strike began. It is a large undertaking at any time to enter the field against a firm with the standing acquired in all branches of finishing by such as Firth and Foster, but this spell of 10 weeks has given the local men a chance to prove of what stuff they are made.

The Walworth Bros are running about half their looms.

Report says that the Washington will rest for two weeks soon.

Repairing of the raceway in the Atlantic has been going on for some time.

Iver Sjostrom is so busy just now that he has not time to say anything.

At the Seldon mill nine looms that are being started will require nine weavers, that means costly goods.

Five hundred and twenty cam box looms are idle in the Methuen cotton mill owing to the scarcity of cotton.

Mr. William Haigh, slasher, late of Methuen, has begun work as a slasher dresser in the Merrimac mills, Lowell.

Mr. Leach, designer of the Lower Pacific and Mrs. Leach, were visitors at Salisbury and Hampton beaches last week.

The Knitted Fabrics dyeing and finishing plant is having all that can be attended to at this time. Mr. Price has charge.

Mr. Swatzenburg, one of the smartest weaving section hands in the Washington endeavored to out-frolic the gentle waves on Sunday.

Mr. Fitzgerald of Oakland avenue, Methuen, is starting two more looms. Lately he had the engine overhauled with more power as a result.

Changing of machinery at the Pacific cotton spinning mill still goes on. A coffer dam is being built in front of the foundation of the new bridge over the canal.

The roofers are at work on the extention of the top mill. When the old pond is laid out as it will be, and nature has her hand in for a year or two, the back of the Arlington would make a beautiful front.

Work at the Farwell Bleachery is as steady and persistent as the growth of the beautiful ivy on its walls. No murmur but that of the machinery. Across and up the stream a little to the back of the Lower Pacific is assuming another appearance, becoming so to speak more mill like.

Mr. Kunhardt aims to manufacture an article equal to anything imported and that means a deal. It may be possible that his ideal is higher than his pinions will carry the practical working. This does not mean by any means that this flight cannot be accomplished. However, it is only fair to say that worsteds are a drug in the market at the present time.

At Kunhardts' worsteds are calm as a windless evening. Something is being done on wool goods but even there business is not cyclonic, yet there is undoubted talent in that little mill. Two designers whose equal would be difficult to duplicate, overseers well up in their respective places, machinery as good as money can buy, a man at the head who knows a finished piece at once.

Mr. John Linnehan, formerly of the Everett, but now of the Methuen Co.'s weaving department was in Nashua, N. H., the other day. On the sidewalk he noticed a man looking him over with evident interest. John returned the compliment until the other fellow ended by exclaiming: "Well, if that aint Jack Linnehan of my old company!" And so those two vets fell to swapping war stories harder than a mule can kick, ending by all of the good things in that staid old place being placed at Johns' disposal for the time being, all of which old soldiers know so well to enjoy.

The Arlington mills are now running 50 72-inch looms (72 inches feed space) on filling requiring two or more shuttles to prevent streaks in the cloth. The new building on Broadway is near completion as far as the outside is concerned. That it will cost considerable goes without saying, also that it will show to advantage, the ornamental and mechanical ability of the architect and mill engineers being a strange departure in mill architecture, as is quite apparent even to the uninitiated, also it is a handsome structure and a splendid addition to the already striking Arlington. Up at the cotton mill when the foundation for the addition was being laid a vein of quick sand was struck which necessitated a bed of cement.

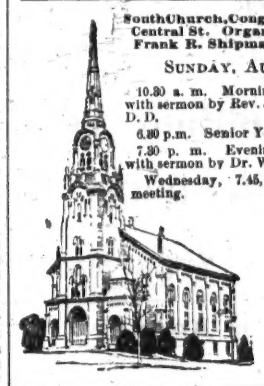

At Brown and Whittier's work was again suspended in the weaving department, last Saturday, to enable the spinning to catch up somewhat. This firm with characteristic generosity, has on request of the help decided to close the mills next Saturday so that the operatives who have been working considerably overtime lately may enjoy a trolley trip to Revere bach. Mr. David Bruce, division superintendent of the Boston and Northern after, being made acquainted with the circumstances, allowed a special car which will travel to the shore. This car is to be decorated in a splendid manner, intimating who are on board, where from, and where going. That the affair will be jolly is assumed, when it is known that J. C. Needham, shipper for the firm, is chairman with Master Mechanic Howard and Chief Engineer Burton as the committee. Miss Katie Herlihy of the salesroom of this firm has resumed work after a four weeks' vacation.

The Question of Transfers.

No one rides upon the street railway lines which immediately serve the Andover public, without encountering in one form or another an injustice in the way in which transfers are granted.

As examples let us cite what is already familiar to many of our citizens. The Salem cars carry passengers to any part of North Andover from Lawrence for five cents, or from Salem for fifteen cents, and to any part of Lawrence as far as the transfer station for twenty cents. But the Andover passenger to ride even to Wilson's corner must pay twenty cents and if he wishes to ride the other mile to Andover square he must pay five cents more.

Upon the Haverhill line the same unsatisfactory condition exists, a five cent fare being necessary for the last mile from Haverhill while the five cents in North Andover carries five miles.

But it is not alone on the new lines where the trouble exists. The Reading line furnishes an equally inconsistent and unfair example in the charge of a ten cent fare from points in Andover beyond the top of the hill to passengers going to Lawrence.

These unfair rates have been borne thus far without much kicking by the Andover public, but the murmurs are becoming so loud they are demanding attention. What Andover ought to have is a five cent fare from any part of Andover to the transfer limit of Lawrence; a ten cent fare from any part of Andover to the transfer limit in Haverhill; and a twenty cent fare from any part of Andover to the transfer limit in Salem. And this ought to be because it is fair to the roads as judged by railway fares in other parts of Massachusetts, and due to the town as an important feeder to the Boston & Northern system. The argument can no longer hold good that the roads are so disconnected the needed interchange of transfers cannot be arranged, for they are all now openly a part of the one system, as they have for a long time been secretly. There are many who believe it would also be of great advantage to the railway company to follow a much more generous policy in giving transfers, and this on the ground that it always pays to be liberal with customers.

The Andover people have been most generous in their treatment of the street railway company and their desire for this present concession should not be unheeded by the railway officials.

Editorial Cinders.

It is not a very usual thing for three brothers and sisters to get together, whose ages make a total of over 240 years. It is even more unusual for the three to be a part of one permanent home as is the case with Mr. Timothy Abbott and his sisters, who yesterday enjoyed making welcome neighbors and friends to celebrate Mr. Abbott's eightieth birthday. The gathering was of course at the fine old homestead on the Ballardvale road, and the wishes for continued years of health and happiness for Mr. Abbott go out from many other townspeople than those who were fortunately there. With one other sister, Mrs. Clark, over eighty-five, and another sister, Miss Hannah Abbott, past her seventy-eighth birthday, this old Andover family occupy a warm place in the hearts of the community, both on account of their long years and their well done part in the town's life.

"Why isn't something done to advertise Andover?" Thus queried one who knows the charms of the town and loves its beauties, in a recent conversation. Echo answers "why?" and yet not without receiving a partial reply even though the full answer is not forthcoming. We believe something is being done all the time to advertise Andover, and it is being done by every natural beauty that is encouraged and every artificial improvement that is being promoted. And all in all that is a lot, but is it enough? We think the query is a pointed one; who will heed the suggestion and do the thing necessary? It costs money to advertise but more than that, it requires confidence in the goods advertised. Put both together and the return is bound to be big, whether it is a town or a prepared food.

The placing of protectors on the elm trees on the hill, shows that Treasurer Sawyer is bound to preserve the beauty of that part of Andover which is most assuredly its glorious trees. The hill was never so beautiful as since the recent work of skilled gardeners has helped to add to the rich gifts of Nature.

ANNUAL REUNION

First Massachusetts Heavy Artillery Association Have Outing at Salem Willows

Yesterday the First Massachusetts Heavy Artillery association held their annual reunion at the Salem Willows. Special cars were run from Andover, Methuen, Lawrence, Haverhill, Amesbury and Ipswich, special rates being made for each place.

When the companies arrived they found that the same cool and comfortable quarters had been secured in the hall above the pavilion, as last year. Coffee was supplied by the Association, but the people as previously requested, provided themselves with drinking utensils. The invitation to the families and friends of the regiment was largely responded to.

During the day the souvenirs had large sales. At 1.30 the business meeting was held. The following is the list of deaths in First Massachusetts Heavy Artillery Association reported since Aug. 1902.

Heavy Taxpayers.

Several errors were made in copying the heavy taxpayers list last week which we trust are fully corrected in the following.

The Center District should include:—

Downing, S. L.	$153 76
Downs, S. M.	114 00
Downes, E. B.	78 00
Draper, W. F.	74 00
Driscoll, N. M.	54 40
St. Augustine's Church	80 00

South District

H. W. Platt is not yet so fortunate as to pay the handsome tax of $2071.60 and that sum should be charged up to Phillips Academy.

West District

The single omission across the Shawsheen was J. E. McGovern, who pays $50.72.

Repairs at Dam on Tewksbury St.

The firm of Babcock & Howland have recently repaired the dam in the Shawsheen river at their mill on Tewksbury street, and they have also dug out and deepened the pond.

When interviewed by a Townsman correspondent, Mr. Howland said that he did not care to make any statement in regard to the process which they used in their works other than that they took "burr" waste and manipulated it into "long" wool. He further stated that they were doing this in a very successful and satisfactory manner, and that they were receiving a great many more orders than they were able to fill.

Mr. Howland claims that the process used by them was invented by themselves and that it is used by no other firm in the country.

Phillips Inn.

The following guests were registered at the Phillips Inn during the past week: Mrs. P. P. Argersinger, J. W. Argersinger, H. M. Snyder, Le Roy H. Hovey, Mrs. Le Roy H. Hovey, New York; Mrs. W. D. Lewis, Brookline; A. Plimpton and wife, Herbert R. Plimpton, West Roxbury, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Carlton, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Alden, Boston; John M. Googin, Lewiston, Me., Irwin E. Peak, Mrs. Irwin E. Peak, Medford, Mass.; G. N. Shepardson, Randolph, New Hampshire; Mrs. D. G. Alexander, Cal.; W. Bradford, Pittsburgh, Pa.; H. S. Shaw, Milton, Mass.

A New Way to Make Apple Trees Bear.

The following story was told the other day of the manner in which a Maine woman forced her tree to bear apples. It seems that in her orchard there was an apple tree which had never borne fruit. This tree was to all appearances one of the finest in that region, having immense branches, plenty of leaves, and even blossoming; but when it came to the harvest time, there was no fruit "in the place where the fruit ought to be."

Finally she determined to make her tree bear, so after thinking over various plans, she bored a fair sized hole in the trunk, and after stuffing in a lot of quinine plugged up the hole. The next year, so the story goes, the tree could hardly uphold the enormous load of apples.

A Ninetieth Birthday

Mrs. J. H. Merrill whose ninetieth birthday was celebrated on Monday, August 10, was one of the eight children of Dr. Oliver and Sarah Fessenden Griswold all of whom, both parents and brothers and sisters, she has survived more than sixty years.

Mrs. Merrill has been the mother of five children, the grandmother of nine, and the great grandmother of three. Of this number all but two are living. During her sixty four years of married life she has been called to part by death with her husband, her youngest son and her eldest granddaughter.

Of her seventeen living descendants nine only were able to be present. These with a very few representatives of other branches of the family lunched with the nonegenarian in the home which she, with her youngest daughter and only niece, has occupied during the last twenty years. Among those who were present was one contemporary, Dr. Joseph P. Fessenden of Salem, Mass., the sole survivor of the family of twelve of Gen. Sam. Fessenden of Portland, Me., from whose house Mrs. Merrill was married.

At four o'clock Mrs. Merrill received her friends upon the lawn of the Gymnasium grounds adjacent to her home. About eighty paid her their respects. They were neighbors, representatives of West Parish church and from adjoining towns. The day was an ideal one in its weather conditions. The greetings of those present, the many missives from both sides of the ocean, the profusion of flowers, and many other tokens of affection brought manifest delight to one who could have a sympathetic interest in and appreciation of the life of those who have been born in the twentieth century alike with those born early in the nineteenth.

All both present and absent united in profound admiration for and devout benedictions upon one who could so thoroughly and graciously enter into the delights of the birthday of wellnigh the oldest inhabitant of Andover.

Work on Baptist Church.

In the Baptist church the work of frescoing and repairing is well under way. Stagings are up for ceiling work and Newman has started on the organ, which he is to stain a dark oak color. All the sheathing is to be replaced with panels. The contract for fresco work has been given to Morton of Haverhill and that of making repairs to J. E. Pitman.

Until the work is completed, the prayer meetings are held in the church vestry.

All of our gingham remnants marked down to 12 1-2 cents. Special value at Farr's Remnant Store, 9 Lawrence treet, Lawrence.

FOUND IN MERRIMACK

Body Supposed to be One of the Victims of the Lowell Explosion

The body of a ten year old child was found floating in the Merrimack river back of Gerry Hardy's farm in West Andover, about a mile west of Tewksbury, this morning, by Mr. Hardy's son Leon, who happened to be at the river bank. When found the body was floating near the shore, in a bathing suit, and it is supposed to be one of the boys who were drowned while in swimming in the Concord river at the time of the terrible explosion in the U. S. Cartridge factory storehouse in Lowell.

Chief of Police Fry, and one of Undertaker Messer's drivers immediately went to West Andover, and took the body to Lowell.

The Young People's Missionary Movement.

Conference at Silver Bay, Lake George, N. Y., July 22-31, 1903.

The Young People's Missionary Movement stands for the broadest catholicity through an enriching and enriched denominationalism. In its four conferences held in the past eighteen months, the representatives of more than thirty denominations interested in the development of the missionary spirit among young people have been brought together for systematic study of the Bible, mission biography, the fields, home and foreign, and the various problems fundamental to the evangelization of the world.

Nine hundred choice young people, selected by the various churches because of their ability and devotion, have been brought together. They have acquired vision, knowledge of facts and methods, and through prayer and fellowship have realized inspiration and consecration necessary for leadership in their own denominations. Thus the Young People's Missionary Movement is a movement of movements.

CLARISSA A. JENNINGS

On Monday evening, Aug. 3, at 11 o'clock, Clarissa A. Jennings, an old resident of Everett, died at her home on Courtland street, Everett, Mass. She had been for some time in failing health, owing to extreme old age, and was under the constant care of a faithful nurse until her death.

One child, a son, Charles E. Jennings, remains to mourn a faithful, loving mother, true and kind. A sister, Mrs. James Batcheller of Lawrence, a brother, John Stone of North Andover, and several grandchildren also survive her.

Mrs. Jennings was born in North Reading, Mass., March 9, 1820. Her parents were George V. and Clarissa N. Stone. In the summer of 1842 she was married to Alexander Emerson Jennings of Lowell. Six children were born to them.

After her marriage Mrs. Jennings resided in the Osgood district, of this town on what is now the Wardman farm, previously she lived for a number of years with her father on the Sylvester Lovejoy, Sr., farm in the same district. Funeral services were held from the Courtland street church, of which she was a charter member, Thursday morning, Rev. F. J. Noyes officiating. Interment was at the family lot in West Parish cemetery.

MRS. EMILY BLAKE

Mrs. Emily Blake of 19 Baker Lane, who has been very ill for some time, and who was taken to the Massachusetts General Hospital last week, died there Monday afternoon. The deceased was 58 years of age and had lived in Andover for the last fifteen years. Her husband, John Blake, died just before she moved to Andover. The funeral took place Wednesday morning, burial being in the St. Augustine cemetery.

DAVID GOODWIN

On Thursday, August 13, David Goodwin died at the home of his son Sylvester on Chestnut street. Deceased was 76 years of age and leaves three sons and two daughters. Burial will be from the house of his son, Sylvester, tomorrow at two o'clock. Interment in Spring Grove Cemetery.

Work at Punchard.

The repairs on the Punchard School building are progressing very rapidly. What was the old "main room" has been converted into two recitation rooms, and a passageway has been built which connects all the local rooms. Three large double windows replace the three single ones which were on the south side of the main building, thus giving a great deal more light. In the fall the school will assemble for devotional exercises in the hall.

Marriage

LAKE WINNIPESAUKEE A BEAUTIFUL SPOT IN NEW HAMPSHIRE EASILY REACHED.

Renowned as a summer resort and famous for its fishing, Lake Winnipesaukee seems to hold sway as the most popular section of New Hampshire. Indeed it would be approaching the impossible to select another spot where such ideal features enter into the making up.

Environments not beautiful but simply magnificent; in the distance the White Mountains with their Titan King, Mt. Washington, looks down with the neighboring Mt. Madison close by its side. And enjoyment, there is something to amuse one all the time, first a coaching party through the neighboring towns, then a hop at this or that hotel, a paddle in the canoe, a fishing expedition in the direction of Annisquam or that famous trip the sixty mile sail over the lake on the Steamer Mt. Washington.

Do you seek a delightful haven on the lake? Well, only choose, for you have Weirs, Wolfeboro, Alton, Alton Bay, Centre Harbor and Bear Island and the other beautiful islands; all these resorts reached in a short while by drive or sail.

Lake Winnipesaukee is only two hours ride from Boston on the Boston & Maine Railroad, and the round trip for the summer is $4.50 to Weirs or Wolfeboro and $4.00 to Alton Bay. Board at hotels or farm houses from $5.00 up.

BOY CURED OF COLIC AFTER PHYSICIAN'S TREATMENT HAD FAILED.

"My boy when four years old was taken with colic and cramps in his stomach. I sent for the doctor and he injected morphine, but the child kept getting worse. I then gave him half a teaspoonful of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and in half an hour he was sleeping and soon recovered."—F. L. Wilkins, Shell Lake, Wis. ON DIAMOND AND CREASE

ANDOVER WINS

North Reading Beaten for the Second Time this Season by Score of 6-5 Thirteen Innings.

In one of the hardest fought baseball games on record in Andover, the Andover baseball team defeated the strong North Reading team in a 13 inning game by a score of 6 to 5. At first both teams were somewhat erratic, but after the first two innings both settled down. In the second inning, matters looked rather bad for the home team, the North Reading nine scoring four runs, but then the Andovers got down to business and blanked their opponents every inning during the remainder of the game.

After the 2nd neither side scored until the eighth when, by a batting rally and the aid of one or two errors, the Andover team cut down the Reading's lead of four runs to one, and again in the ninth, they evened up the score on a two bagger by Maloney, followed with another by Stuart.

Stuart at third base made a beautiful running catch of a fly that seemed far out of his reach, while Maloney of Andover and J. Eaton of Reading led in batting, both finding the sphere often, and pounding it hard, although on account of the tall grass none of the hits went as far as they might have gone, had the outfield been in better condition.

O'Connell at short did a lot of excellent work and Stevens of Reading, at third, had several very difficult chances, all but one of which he accepted in fine style. The score:

Melrose 7, Unions 3

The Unions acquitted themselves very creditably against the Melrose nine last Saturday, although beaten. The Melrose team is one of the strongest nines in New England, being champions of the Trolley League last year. Their pitcher, Harris, is being tried by the Lawrence New England League team. Arthur Stuart, crack pitcher at Punchard two years ago, and lately returned from Richmond, played first base for the Unions and put up an excellent game.

MOHAIRS EASY VICTORY

Andover Overwhelmingly Defeated in League Game on Local Crease. Fine Batting by Priestly and Hird.

The Andover Cricket club were defeated last Saturday afternoon on the local crease in a league game at the hands of the Mohairs by the score of 104 to 26, the Mohairs not losing a wicket. The visiting team batted first with Hird and Priestly and by excellent stick work brought the score up to 104, Priestly having 54 and Hird 46. The Mohairs then declared their inning closed. Andover then went to the bat but were soon retired, Allen's bowling being of a very high order having 8 wickets for 12 runs. Black batted best for Andover having six runs to his credit. The score:

International Golf

On the golf links of the Essex Country Club yesterday the team from Oxford and Cambridge Universities met the cream of the golfing talent of Massachusetts. In the morning a four ball match was played which the Englishmen won by three points to two or by holes 13 to 2. The Massachusetts team evened matters up in the afternoon winning six points to the Englishmen's five or 16 holes to 13. As a result of the day's play the teams were tied with eight points each but the Englishmen led with holes won 26 to 18.

Alfred L. Ripley of this place was captain of the all Massachusetts team but was unfortunate in both his matches losing the foursome with T. P. Curtis as partner, against Hunter of Oxford and Barnes of Cambridge 5 down. He was defeated in the afternoon by Hunter of Oxford three up and two to play. Many Andover golfers witnessed the day's play, and saw some very fine exhibitions of the Scottish game.

If He Were a Woman.

"If I were a woman," he said, as he leaned on the wheel and gazed dreamily toward the Long Id. shore gleaming green and silver across the blue waters, "If I were a woman I would manage my husband and he would never know that he was being managed."

"How would you do it?" eagerly asked the woman who was curled up on the floor of the boat, knitting a baby's cap.

"Suppose you didn't have one to manage?" inquired the girl with the eyeglasses and all her rings on the wrong hand.

"Oh, I'd get one," answered the man at the wheel. "I'd be just that kind of a girl. When I got him he'd never regret it."

"Huh!" said both girls, and one even turned her back on him—but she listened over her shoulder.

"I wouldn't be perfect because husbands don't like angels on earth. Angels are for poets and widowers to write and dream and think about, but they are embarrassing to live with. So are great beauties or public celebrities, senior wranglers, golf champions or women who write books."

"My, but you seem to know a lot about it! One would think you were a popular Mormon."

"I said I wouldn't be perfect," continued the man at the wheel. "And I wouldn't. But by faults would be very feminine faults. I would be sweet tempered, I would be patient. I would never ask awkward questions or be exacting or suspicious. I would never never scold him or reproach him for trifles."

"Oh, you would be insipid!" cried both girls scornfully.

"Indeed, I would not," said the man at the wheel, indignantly. "I didn't say that I wouldn't have spirit, but I wouldn't waste it when it wasn't needed. I would not have hysterics if he walked up 5th ave. with one of my women friends, nor would I look back for two hours after he had gazed admiringly at a pretty woman in a restaurant when he took me out to dine; but I would be jealous enough to make him think that I was very fond of him—no more, no less. Jealousy flatters a woman, but it bores a man to death—unless it is very subtle, suggestive rather than positive.

"I wouldn't economize for him. That's a great mistake, and most unappreciated wives have that feeling. I would ask him to help choose my new hats and gowns sometimes, because a man usually chooses the most expensive thing.

"Mine would be a lifelong wooing," said the man at the wheel, "or, at least, he would be wooing me over and over and never quite sure each time that he was playing a winning game. I wouldn't ever make it exciting, because he would get weary after a while, but it would be ever interesting and absorbing, and the game would always seem worth two candles. I wouldn't be a clever woman—not obviously so—but I'd be witty enough to make him laugh and wonder, and I'd have humor enough to appreciate how much funnier his jokes were than those of other men. And, above all, I would be individual. I should be myself and no one else."

'And what would you look like?" asked the girl with the baby's cap.

"Oh, I'd be tall, well made but slender, with black, silky hair, eyes as blue as the sea and lashes as my hair, creamy cheeks and teeth like rows of pearls between two geranium petals."

"Bless me!" grasped the girl with the ring. "You wouldn't need all those other qualities. The problem would be how to keep demonstrative admirers in order."

"Oh, I wouldn't keep them in too great order. I'd be demonstrative myself—maybe."

"Horrid thing! If you were a girl we wouldn't want to know you."

"Oh, yes, you would—if you were men."

Uncle Sam Turns Beauty Specialist.

The officials at the Agricultural department have undertaken a new line of work—that of beauty specialization. They assure you most politely that they see no need of improvement in the appearance of our sex, but they are experimenting with a wonderful plant that is to bring beauty within the reach of all.

It comes from the tropics, and according to the women of the West Indies can transform a withered old woman into a vision of freshness and youth.

It is called the cashew plant, and grows in bush form to the height of six feet.

The fruit, instead of growing from the branches, is developed in the stalk.

When the stalk is enlarged to a certain size the fruit is ripe. It is rather palatable as food, but its acidity and astringent qualities best fit it for making wine as famous for the restoration of youth, as Ponce de Leon's renowned fountain.

The fruit is as large as an orange and like the banana, is sometimes yellow, sometimes red.

Growing above the fruit another protuberance bulges out which, when investigated proves to be a kidney-shaped nut.

The kernel which is encased in two shells, is as delicious as the chestnut, but the beauty secret is found between the outer and inner case.

If you are willing to retire from social life for a week and suffer torture in order to be beautiful, use this recipe according to directions

Procure, when fresh, one cashew nut. The two shells of the nut form a sac for a small amount of acrid black juice. Smear the juice on your face and when you grow black and bloated do not be frightened. The family physician, if he gets a glimpse at you, would pronounce you a hopeless case of blood poisoning, but he would be mistaken, you are simply being skinned. At the close of the ordeal your old complexion has gone into nature's waste basket and your face will be as fresh and dainty as the season's handsomest bud.

Whether it pays is quite another story.

The brown-skinned beauties of the West Indies can vouch for both the suffering and good results of this strenuous treatment and generally take their beauty cure about once a year.

The Bureau of Plant Industry of the Agricultural Department receives seeds from all parts of the world, and though they are experimenting with the cashew it is not likely to be of sufficient commercial value to warrant government cultivation. Therefore no sample seeds will be sent out for free distribution. Uncle Sam is too busy taking care of the farmers to spare room in his garden patch for the beautifying of their daughters.

POOR OPINION OF COUNCIL.

The death of W. J. Swain, founder of the Philadelphia Record, made reminiscent a group of printers gathered at their union headquarters.

"I was make-up on the Record," remarked one veteran. One day, having returned home from work, I glanced at the paper and wished to expire on the spot. In making up I got two stories mixed—a meeting of council and the kidnapping of a boy by Indians. Over the council story appeared the headline 'Kidnapped by Indians.' I considered myself discharged. But what was my surprise when I learned that Mr. Swain's only comment had been. 'They ought to have been kidnapped. I wish the news were true.'

"I retained my job, but thereafter saw to it that the proper combination of head and article was made."

Many Horses Perished.

The local fire department was called out by an alarm from box 23 at the corner of Essex and Oxford streets at 12.20 this morning for the most difficult fire since the Stanley ice house conflagration some months ago, a fire that resulted in the destruction of thousands of dollars worth of property and the burning alive of fifteen horses.

The disastrous fire which in all its horror was decidedly spectacular, burned over an area of about an acre and left in its wake a mass of charred ruins and the blackened carcasses of almost a score of horses.

The conflagration started from some unknown cause, probably spontaneous combustion, in the junk shop of Frank Bros., on Chandler street. John Towle, a night watchman on the Oxford street sewer, discovered it while performing his duties, and pulled in an alarm. When Mr. Towle first noticed the blaze the junk shop was a mass of flames, which quickly spread to carriage sheds in the rear and thence to their stable. Joseph H. Couture's livery stable and carriage sheds adjoining Frank Bros.' buildings on Bennett street also caught fire immediately after, and when the department arrived a full fledged conflagration was in progress. The fire spread so rapidly that within ten minutes after it started a string of building from Chandler to Bennett street was a mass of flames.

The contents of the building were of the fire all the more difficult to fight, a very inflammable nature and made the sky for miles around was illuminated by the glare of the blaze. Hundreds of people were attracted.

Chief Rutter and his department arrived on the scene shortly after the alarm. It was seen at once that the enormity of the fire required a second alarm, which was immediately sounded. The heat was intense and the flames burst forth in long sheets, licking some dwelling houses in close proximity. At the beginning of the fight the firemen devoted most of their attention to these dwelling houses, upon which several streams were kept playing, thus preventing further spread of the fire and saving much more valuable property and probably human lives.

When the fire ignited Couture's livery stable, the night watchman there, Gadis LeClaire, was at work cleaning harnesses. He was first made aware of the fire by seeing a large volume of smoke pouring into the stable from the rear. The next instant the flames burst through the west wall and before the watchman could recover from his surprise the livery stable was a mass of flames. LeClaire made an effort to save the 22 horses in the stable, of which he was guardian. Police Officers Faradis and Richardson, William Donovan of Engine 2's company and Fred Welch rushed into the stable and assisted LeClaire. The halters on all the horses were cut and the animals driven from the stalls. An effort was made by the rescuers to drive them out of the stable. The terrified beasts, however, were running wild about the door space. For the next five minutes a terrible scene took place in the burning livery stable.

The place was dense with smoke, which with the whinnies of the horses, the cries of the men and the cracking of the flames was an awful spectacle. The men in the stable narrowly escaped being trampled to death by the stampeding horses. Officer Faradis was knocked down once, but scrambled to his feet before the maddened horses trampled him with their hoofs. He escaped with a few scratches.

Of the 22 horses in the stable all but seven were rescued. All the harnesses, hay, grain and other contents were destroyed.

Other men burst in the carriage houses of the livery stable and endeavored to save the contents before the fire could reach them. They were partly successful. Two handsome and costly hacks and an ambulance wagon owned by Undertaker Couture, with several small carriages, were saved. The rest of the contents of these sheds were destroyed. A horse in a small stable on the south side of the livery stable, which was owned by James Sinott, a milkman, was suffocated by the smoke. This barn was the only structure left after the fire had spent itself, on a large area.

On Chandler street fierce flames and excitement prevailed. In the light of the burning stable of the Frank Bros. the carcasses of six horses could be seen squirming in the last throes of death as the terrible heat roasted them. The interior of the stable was like a furnace and it was impossible for a fireman to enter.

As with the rest of the buildings the fire had to be fought from without. The fire was so intense, however that the many streams poured on it from all sides seemed to have but little effect. At 1.20 o'clock, an hour after the alarm was sounded a mass of smouldering ruins was all that was left of the buildings.

The stables, carriage sheds, and the junk shop, all flimsy structures, were all destroyed, but the fire department is to be commended that their indefatigable and persistent efforts prevented the conflagration from spreading over a more extensive area, including several tenement dwelling houses, which surrounded the burning buildings at very close range.

The occupants of these houses were asleep when the fire broke out and many were awakened by the roar of the flames, and the resultant noise of firemen. Many hurried into the street half clad and greatly excited. It was necessary for Officers Lewis and Mahoney to hold one of the Frank brothers, who was in a great frenzy over his loss.

The property of the Frank brothers is a total loss, as they had carried no insurance on it. They had seven horses in their stable and but one of these was taken out alive. This one however had its eyes burned out and its sufferings were relieved shortly afterward, when it was shot by Officer French. All the rest of the contents of their buildings were totally destroyed with the structures themselves. Their loss is estimated at $2000.

The livery stable and carriage sheds rented by Joseph H. Couture were owned by E. B. Rhodes. These were valued at $2000.

Mr. Couture's property loss is estimated at $5000. This is covered by $3000 insurance with the Farmers' Insurance company.

Damage to adjoining property is put at $1000, making the total about $10,000.

Besides 13 horses belonging to Undertaker Couture, there were in the livery stable when the fir broke out, eight horses owned by George Hinchcliffe, Dr. Petit, Lucien Bazzin, Rev. Fr. Portal, Joseph Croteau, Jalbert Bros. and Caterer Fred D. Lane. Some were saved but which ones could not be determined.

The scene of the fire was a very dangerous locality and it is miraculous that not greater damage was wreaked. Murray Bros.' large stable was damaged to some extent as was Gagne's wood yard. The surrounding tenement houses were also scorched and will need slight repairs.

The apparatus did not leave the scene for an hour after the all out was sounded at 1.20.

Foley's Kidney Cure is a medicine free from poisons and will cure any case of kidney disease that is not beyond the reach of medicine. Sold by Frederick and Bower, John J. Forrest, Frank Emerson.

THE FIRE LOSSES.

Chief Rutter this morning estimated the loss at last night's fire to be about $7,000, the insurance on some of the property destroyed reducing the real loss some thousand dollars.

The chief stated this morning that everything was in the fire department's favor and he felt much pleased at the efficient manner in which the fire was gotten under control. There was no wind to speak of last night and for that reason it was possible for the department to get a lead on it.

The chief's first order was to prevent the adjacent tenement houses from catching fire and then the attention was put to the burning property.

The chief will thoroughly investigate the cause of the fire although he says that it was probably spontaneous combustion.

Undertaker Joseph H. Couture lost six of his own horses, valued at $700. Mr. Couture's new trotting horse, Don, was saved. A number of the horses in Couture's stable were saved, among them being Mr. Couture's trotter, George Hinchcliffe's valuable horse, Dr. Petit's horse, and the Rev. J. A. Portal's carriage horse.

LAWTON POST TO ASK FOR CHARTER.

It is likely that General Lawton Post, Civil War veterans, will again petition to the department officers for a charter for the organization. Nothing definite can at present be learned in regard to when this action will be taken by the post but from a conversation with Adjutant Roscoe Doble this morning it was gleaned that there was a tendency among the members of the post for still another attempt to be granted a charter of the Grand Army of the Republic. Although the matter has not been brought up at a meeting of the post as yet it is very likely that such action will be taken before many months pass. The members all seem in earnest in their purpose to obtain a charter and feel even more determined to possess a charter for the post than they did when the matter was first proposed, at the time of leaving the Needham Post, 39, of which branch of the G. A. R., they were a part until a few years ago.

At that time they voted that never would the fight for a charter be given up.

The present Department Commander Dwight H. Judd is the only one that has not been petitioned to for a new charter. It is probable that before his term of office expires that a petition will be made to him.

The next petition for a charter will be the sixth, and the last time that the post was denied it appealed to Commander-in-Chief Thomas Stewart and he upheld the action of the Department Commander after a lengthy consideration.

Two petitions for charter have been made to Commander Peter D. Smith, two have been presented to Commander Silas A. Barton, and one has been made to Commander William W. Blackmar. The decision of Commander Blackmar was appealed.

Mr. Doble stated this morning that the reason of the petitions being denied was the individual efforts of some of the members of Needham Post, and of others influential Grand Army men, both local and out of town. He also said that some of the higher officers of the army were opposed to the granting of the charter for personal reasons.

Needham post went on record once against the granting of the charter, but that has been its only effort to prevent the granting of one.

General Lawton post, however, is thriving and holds enthusiastic bi-monthly meetings at Pemberton hall. Before the incorporation of the post the membership was about 73 and as a number of the veterans were away at the time of incorporation the number of members who signed the constitution was only 50. The post has gradually increased in its membership and now numbers 71. New members are constantly being mustered in and at the meeting next Wednesday it is expected that two other recruits will be admitted.

POPULAR VOCALIST ENTERTAINS FRIENDS.

William H. Ivers, the well known vocalist, was yesterday entertained by a party of his friends numbering about a dozen from Somerville, Charlestown and Boston who called on him in this city and were taken by him to Canobie Lake park where he royally entertained them during the afternoon and early evening. They attended the theatre and afterwards had dinner at the pavilion. While seated at the tables Mr. Ivers was called to his feet and was presented in behalf of those present with a handsome and valuable watch charm, bearing his monogram. The presentation speech was made by Alderman John J. McCarthy of Somerville. Mr. Ivers was somewhat overcome but expressed his gratitude at the speaker's kind words and the generous act of his friends. The remainder of the afternoon was enjoyed in various diversions and the party left for home in the early evening.

Those present included C. E. Byrnes, Somerville; D. Simonds, Somerville; John F. Sullivan, Somerville; Alderman McCarthy, Somerville; John McCarthy, father of the alderman; Peter Welch, Chelsea; George B. Phillips, Somerville; D. McNamara, Charlestown; Daniel A. Bradley, Esq., and James A. McGann.

CHAMBERS' BID FINALLY REJECTED.

The Boston and Maine railroad has thrown out the bid of James Chambers and Son of this city for the building of the So. Union street bridge and has called for new bids.

Last week the Boston and Maine awarded the contract for the building of the bridge, including the excavation, stone, iron and wood work, to the Chambers firm which was the lowest bidder of local and out of town contractors.

The railroad, into whose hands the construction of the bridge and the superintending of the work and everything pertaining to it has been placed by the county commissioners and the city of Lawrence, however has decided to change its plans and asks for bids to do the work for they desire done since they have revised their plans.

Mr. James Chambers of the firm of Chambers and Son said this afternoon to a Telegram reporter that he did not think that bids could be obtained by the Boston and Maine for the work it required done for the amount of money they are willing to expend in the building of the bridge.

He could not tell what changes the railroad wished to have made but said that it wanted a better job done than it did before. A call has been made for bids but no time has been stated as to when they are to be received. There is no time limit. Mr. Chambers said that he did not know whether his firm would again compete for the job.

Surveyors of the railroad have been at work on South Union street and have measured off the land and have staked it in. The road will at that point be 65 feet wide.

Y. M. C. A. BOWLING LEAGUE ORGANIZED.

NASHUA, Aug. 10—Representatives of Haverhill, Lawrence and Manchester Young Mens Christian associations met with the local association this evening and organized the Merrimack Valley Bowling league. The following were present: Messrs. West, Mitchell and McIntosh, of Haverhill, Secretary Spence of Lawrence, W. C. Mason of Manchester; while Physical Director Ashley looked after the interests of the local association.

It was voted to run off two schedules, the first of 10 pins, to start Oct. 13, and the second of duck pins, to start at the close of the first schedule.

Each team will roll four matches with every other team, and suitable team and individual trophies will be awarded to the winners. W. J. West of Haverhill was appointed official scorer, and C. H. Ashley of Nashua was elected secretary and treasurer and was instructed to draw a schedule of games. Tuesday nights were selected as league nights, and the first matches will be rolled Oct. 13.

The representatives present were very enthusiastic over the bowling outlook for the coming season, and the cranks are sure to find plenty of good sort ahead of them for the coming winter.

BOLD ATTEMPT TO PICK POCKET.

In a crowd Frank S. Leonard of No. Andover came very near losing his purse while at Glen Forest Saturday evening. Mr. Leonard was at the Forest platform waiting for a car when he felt someone rub up against him and looking around he saw a man with his purse in his hand, which Mr. Leonard had in his hip pocket. He grabbed the fellow who threw the pocketbook on the track and Mr. Leonard released the fellow to regain his purse. The thief escaped amongst the crowd. Mr. Leonard describes him as being about 27 years of age, with dark hair and mustache, wearing a black slouch hat and a gray suit. He was about five feet six inches tall.

SEWER WORK RECOMMENCED.

Work was commenced this morning upon the sewer at the lower end of Essex street, starting at Union stret and being excavated up the street to Newbury street.

Some few weeks ago work of digging the trench and laying the pipe was commenced but at that time it was discovered that there could be no outlet to the sewer if constructed.

A gang of about 30 men are now at work and the trench is well along.

EPWORTH LEAGUE OUTING.

The Epworth league of the Garden Street church and a number of the members' friends enjoyed an evening of much pleasure at Hemlock grove, Lake Cochichewick, North Andover.

The evening was spent in social intercourse and a number of those present entertained with vocal selections. A short business meeting was held. The party left on a special car at 6.30 and was met at the terminus of the North Andover line by Wrights barge attached to a four-horse hitch. Lunch was partaken of by the assemblage during the night. The return trip was made about 11 o'clock and the barge left the Epworth Leaguers at the corner of Newbury and Garden streets.

Among those who attended the affair were: Mr. and Mrs. William N. Burdett, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Dillon, Miss Lillian Penney, Miss Sadie Fearon, Miss Lizzie English, Miss Elizabeth Wilson, Miss Ella Martin, Miss Bessie Martin, Miss Eva Kress, Miss Cora Fletcher, Miss Maude Ellis, Miss Annie Ellis, Miss Louise Smith, Miss Florence Dawson, Mrs. S. F. Dawson, Rev. A. Justin Northrup, Earle Phelps, William Rich, Mr. Steward, Joseph Wilson, Walter Lillis, Walter Carney, Charles Hawley and others. Miss Lillian Penney arranged the affair.

CLERKS ENJOY JOLLY OUTING.

Wednesday afternoon the clerks of Robertson, Sutherland and Co's dry goods and department store enjoyed an outing to Cercle Montcalm grove on the Haverhill road.

They left this city early in the afternoon and when they arrived at the grove they found a sumptuous spread all in readiness after preparations by the Graichen brothers, whose ability in the culinary art is well known.

A number of sporting events were carried out and they afforded much amusement. Among the events were a 75 yard dash won by Miss Kathleen Cahill, with Miss M. Quigley as a close second and Miss Sadie Crane third. The three legged race was an easy victory for Jeremiah P. McDayes and companion. Waldo P. Smith-ys and companion took second prize.

The rest of the afternoon and evening was spent at dancing, the music for which was furnished by Lavelly's orchestra. Refreshments were dispensed by J. M. Gingras.

Among those present at the outing were Misses Sadie Crane, Mabelle Hewitt, Donovan, O'Mahoney, Norton, Mulcahey and Eagan, Messrs. J. McSimpson, of Boston, Waldo Smitheys Vincent Young of Methuen and others.

ELECTED OFFICERS.

A meeting of the Merrimack Valley Football association was held in St. George's hall, yesterday morning, and considerable business transacted. The officers of the association were elected as follows: President, George W. Johnson; vice president, W. Connors; secretary, W. Teale. The election of the financial secretary and treasurer was deferred until the next meeting. Lynn was admitted into the league and action upon the admission of the Boston Rovers was left over until the next meeting.

The league now embraces four clubs, Ward 5, Methuen, Andover and Lynn. The meeting was well attended. The season will probably open about the last of September.

A smoke talk will be held by the league on August 22.

THE MERRIMACK VALLEY BOARDS OF TRADE OUTING.

The annual outing of the Merrimack Valley Boards of Trade is to be resumed this year Wednesday, August 26, after an interim of two years. The host of the occasion is to be the Haverhill board of trade. The day's enjoyment will consist of a trip from Haverhill to Newburyport on the steamer Merrimack. Electrics will be taken back to the "Pines" and at 1 p. m. a banquet will be held.

As guests of the occasion and after dinner speakers the boards will be favored by Secretary of Navy William H. Moody; Hon. A. P. Gardner, Congressman of the Sixth Massachusetts District; Hon. William S. Knox; Hon. Charles S. Hamlin and others.

The committee on sports have arranged the following program: Baseball game, Massachusetts vs. New Hampshire; tug of war, Massachusetts vs. New Hampshire; quoits; potato race; three-legge race; bag race; fat men's race; 100-yard dash; standing jump; hop step and jump.

Each of the last seven will have first and second prizes. Entries may be made with the committee up to the time of the event.

The Metropolitan band, 25 pieces, Frank Bolan, leader, will furnish music the entire day.

The Merrimack Valley association is composed of the boards of trade of Concord, Manchester, Nashua, Lowell, Lawrence, Haverhill and Newburyport. The local board entertained the association at Glen Forest in 1899.

All of our gingham remnants marked down to 12 1-2 cents. Special value at Farr's Remnant Store, 9 Lawrence treet, Lawrence.

BOARD OF HEALTH HEARING.

At Thursday night's meeting of the board of health, the petition of Louis Aplebaum for permission to erect a stable at 87 Spruce street, which was denied by the board some time ago, when he was given permission to withdraw, will be again presented to the board. Lawyer R. H. Sherman will appear for the petitioner.

The residents in the vicinity of the site of the proposed stable are much averse to having one erected and will appear in opposition to the granting of the same. Probably no hearing will be granted the petitioner except to hear what his attorney has in his defense. A date for a hearing will, no doubt, be set if the petition or request for one is maintained, and at that time it is likely that much interest and opposition in the matter will be manifested.

LAKE MEMPHREMAGOG 32 MILES SAIL AND THE BEAUTIES OF MASSAWIPPI AND CHAMPLAN.

Memphremagog and Massawippi are pleasant names which conjure before the mind's eye two clear, crystal sheets of water in the Valley of the Connecticut; flanked on one side by the White Mountains and on the other by the Green Mountains. With the Lordly Champlain which lies to the west, they make up a lake region which has no peer as regards scenery and environments.

Memphremagog is thirty-two miles in length and the traveler from the states gains admission by means of Newport, Vt., a beautiful town from which the Steamer "Lad of the Lake" embarks for the sail over the lake, and what a sail past beautiful stretches of beach which resemble, were it not for the quiet calmness of the waters, the North Atlantic coast; magnificent mountains which appear to rise from the shore like small hills gradually developing into lofty peaks. Bear mountain especially, catches the vision of the observer carrying it to the dome-shape summit of the famous Owl's Head, then an oddly shaped rock noted as the meeting place of some savage horde in ages past or a beautiful vista of verdant islands rich in lore of Canadian Wafriors or French Explorers, next a thriving settlement, famous perhaps fifty years back as a Smugglers Haunt.

At length the traveler finds himself no longer under the stars and stripes but in the land of the "Union Jack". The line is crossed and the Dominion is reached.

Judging from this section, Canada is indeed a vacation country; a land of unlimited attractions. The pretty settlement of Georgeville is a perfect resort. Clustered here are a score of summer cottages, representing the business and wealth of Montreal and Canada, and not a few Americans.

On she glides passing the Indian bark canoe which sail out from the landing of the summer cottages, occasionally tooting the whistle, which sounds like a signal for the birds to let forth singing and chirping and whistling a welcome to their accustomed and looked for visitors.

About twenty-five miles have now been passed, and a way about seven miles distant is the giant Mt. Orford which is staring us straight ahead. At the foot of the mountain is the terminus of the trip, Magog, a busy Canadian city.

This is the finish of the thirty-two sail, but by no means the limit of this beautiful region; look at the magnificent, though not famous lake, "Massawippi", at its calm surface, at the numerous canoes paddling back and forth, and at the beautiful streams, the St. Francis and Massawippi rivers, which carry from the lake their beautiful supply. See the anxious angler and take note of his catches; count the varieties; thirty!—trout, pickerel, bass, togus, lunge, salmon, pike, perch and others and question yourself, where is the ideal resort?

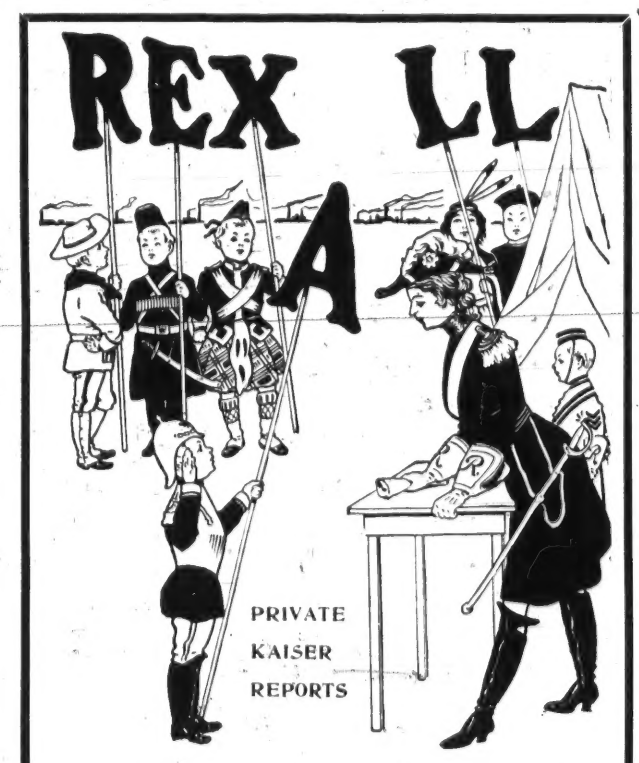

While in this region observe the beautiful towns; Coventry, Barton and Barton Landing, which, althought not famous resorts, have a right to be, if scenery and atmosphere count for anything. St. Johnsbury, a thriving city is fast becoming a leading resort, and then on the west Danville, Walden, Walcott, Hyde Park, Greenville, Swanton and Maquam, the last two on the shores of Lake Champlain. No description can do justice to this jewel ly to the hearts of both French and Americans.

Filled with romantic interest, Indian traditions, the historic battle ground of the French and Indians, the landing spots of the early French Explorers, the trappers rading posts and the magnificent villas on the shore speak for themselves.

Champlain, Memphremagog and Massawippi, with a dozen smaller lakes and ponds, are the objective points in the region known as the Valley of the Connecticut and Northern Vermont, destined to become one of the greatest summering sections in North America.

The Boston and Maine Passenger Department, Boston, publishes two beautiful descriptive books which will be mailed to any address upon receipt of four cents in stamps. The titles of these books are, "The Valley of the Connecticut and Northern Vermont" and "Lake Memphremagog and About There".

REX ALL

"I have seen many sad cases in my search. So many suffer with sour stomach and fermentive dyspepsia. Their cheeks and lips are pale; their tongues flabby and tooth-marked; some have no appetite, in others the appetite is very irregular; many have a feeling of distress after eating and pain in the stomach. There is a general feeling of lassitude, and in all cases weak pulse and muscular weakness may be noted. It is surprising to see the gladness in the faces of those who have been long sufferers and are now experiencing relief after using Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets.

"Messrs. E. M. & W. A. ALLEN are receiving the grateful thanks of thousands for the blessings Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets have brought to Andover people."

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets are Warranted to Cure all forms of Indigestion and Dyspepsia.

Money will be refunded, exactly as printed on package, in case of dissatisfaction. Price, 25 cents, at our store or by mail.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kelley will leave the latter part of the week for a couple of weeks' vacation in Maine.

The Essex County Teachers association will hold its annual convention, Oct. 23, in town hall, Peabody.

Mrs. James Ash of Camden street is spending the month of August in Montreal and Three Rivers, Canada.

A party to include Mr. and Mrs. George H. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Varnum C. Sanborn, Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Klemke and Mr. and Mrs. Rhodes go to Canobie Lake Saturday, where they will occupy a cottage for three weeks.

The Ingalls estate recently purchased by Mr. Hartshorne will doubtless be offered to the town as a site for a school building lot. Mr. Hartshorne said this morning that he was not as yet ready to make a statement in regard to the matter.

Charles E. Goss, one of Methuen's best known residents, Saturday, was congratulated by his many friends on the occasion of his 81st birthday. The event was quietly observed. Mr. Goss has lived in this vicinity 57 years, and for many years has been deputy sheriff of Essex county. He still is actively engaged in the work, and is able, in spite of his years, to keep along with his work as well as those much younger. Mr. Goss's many friends unite in wishing him many happy returns of the day.

BOY CURED OF COLIC AFTER PHYSICIAN'S TREATMENT HAD FAILED.

"My boy when four years old was taken with colic and cramps in his stomach. I sent for the doctor and he injected morphine, but the child kept getting worse. I then gave him half a teaspoonful of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and in half an hour he was sleeping and soon recovered."—F. L. Wilkins, Shell Lake, Wis. SUCCESSFUL LAWN PARTY.

One of the most successful social events of the Second Primitive Methodist church was the lawn party held last night at the church grounds under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid society connected with the church. The evening was a delightful one, and many improved the opportunity to enjoy the occasion on the spacious church lawn. There were several hundred present during the evening, including a large number of children.

The lawn was prettily decorated with lanterns strung about and the full moon made it very light, so that all enjoyed the occasion immensely.

During the evening an entertainment was given, consisting of musical selections by the choir, under the direction of Robert Bannister. The selections rendered follow: "Let the Hills Resound," "When Evening's Twilight," and "Sweet and Low." These were much enjoyed. Ten tableaux were given, and were greatly enjoyed. The tableaux, with the participants, follow: "Ten Little Niggers," Laurence Fox, Charles Leach, Willie Short, Clarence Donkin, Harry Law, Clarence Leach, Louis Craven, James Silverthorne, Harold Donkin, Percy Craven.

"The Doctor's Visit," Mabel Emsley and George Ashley.

"Little Mothers," Ruth Emsley, Jessie Fitzgerald, Florence Dugdale, Elsie Amiss, Alice White, Fannie Langford, Bertha Craven, Ruth Emsley, Grace Dyson, Florence Craven, Florence Kemp and Margaret White.

"Ten Virgins," Gladys Donkin, Margaret Shaw, Laura Askley, Lillian Short, Violetta Silverthorne, Eva Aichambault, Dorothy Amis, Mary Baker, Florence Bateman and Helen Frye.

A selection was sung by a quartet comprising Mrs. Fred Donkin, Mrs. Robert Amis, Mr. Howarth and Robert Pannister, as this tableau was given.

"Have a Taste," Fred Morrison and Lillian Short.

"Rock of Ages," Miss Bella Porter, with selections by quartet.

"The Peace Maker," Eva Crompton, Willie White and Gertrude Short.

"Three Maids of Lee," Mattie Fox, Della Porter and Annie Emsley, with solo by Mrs. Robert Amiss.

"Four Generations," Mrs. Jonathan Craven, Mrs. Emsley, Mrs. Austin and Alfred Champey.

"Tired Mothers," Mrs. Robert Amiss, Mrs. Joseph Emsley, Mrs. Bluff, Mrs. Dugdale, Mrs. W. H. Craven, Mrs. Fred Donkin, Mrs. Bolser, Mrs. James Silverthorne, Mrs. George H. Ashley, Mrs. Law.

Candy, ice cream and fancy articles were on sale during the evening, and the tables were well patronized, quite a little sum being realized from this source. The ice cream was in charge of Mrs. James Silverthorne and Mrs. Bolser. The candy in charge of Lillian Silverthorne and the fancy table in charge of Bella Porter and Annie Emsley.

The tableau committee comprised Mrs. Dugdale, Mrs. Bluff, and Mrs. Robert E. Bannister had charge of the music. The affair was held for the benefit of the church, and a goodly sum was realized.

COUNTY NEWS.

Arrangements are being made for a big labor parade at Lynn on Labor day.

Captain William Frye of Beverly was drowned of Magnolia yesterday afternoon.

Work is being pushed with all possible haste to complete the wireless telegraph station on Thatcher's island.

George H. Fletcher who says his home is in Gloucester was shot in the right shoulder in Glenville, N. Y., Monday.

Augusta lodge, Friends of Maine, located at Lynn, celebrated the eighth anniversary of its organization, Wednesday evening.

The Marblehead board of assessors have so far completed their labors as to be able to announce their tax rate for this year, as $19 on $1000, $4.20 more than last year.

Mrs. Elizabeth K. Gray of Ipswich is dead. She was born in Ipswich, July 9, 1841, in the the house in which she died. She married Eugene W. Gray, editor of the Ipswich Register.

The county commissioners have awarded the contract for building the Water's river bridge, near W. Peen Hussey's residence, to Thomas Fitzgibbons of Beverly, for about $23,000.

Winifred Willcomb, one of the gatemen employed by the Boston and Maine in Ipswich was struck and instantly killed Sunday night by the Bar Harbor express, which goes through at 10.30.

The county commissioners at Salem, Saturday gave the adjourned hearing on the petitions of Danvers and Beverly citizens on the location of the Danvers river bridge between Rial Side and Salem.

A Peeping Tom is annoying the women residents of Pine Hill, Lynn, a police officer is kept patrolling the hill district every night, but up to the present time has not succeeded in getting the man.

The Haverhill common council has concurred unanimously in the order from the aldermen approving the enabling act passed by the last legislature for the erection of a second bridge across the Merrimac river.

Giuseppe Montonaro of Haverhill was held in $500 bonds for the superior court by Judge Abbott Friday on a charge of polygamy on a complaint brought by Rosana Romano, who since 1986 has been living with Montonaro as his wife.

Robert Dresser and James Gilman were arrested in Haverhill, Tuesday evening, after a long and exciting chase. They stole two coats from a house on Broadway. They were held in $300 each for the grand jury, on a charge of larceny.

The marriage until now kept an absolute secret, but solemnized by Rev. George E. Hall at Dover, N. H., Aug. 14, 1900, is that of Walter C. Cleveland and Miss Gertrude M. Deroche of Haverhill whose home was for several years in Exeter, N. H.

A large number of young men and women who were pupils in the Burrill grammar school of Salem, 15 years ago, assembled at that school building Friday evening, to extend their greetings to Miss Kate F. Osgood, their principal, who is in the city on a visit from Los Angeles, Cal.

The announced attraction for Newburyport day at Salisbury beach are two bands of music, base ball games, life saving exhibition, 100-yard dash, shoe race, 3-legged race, potato race, vaudeville shows, fireworks and other amusements. The gathering in size will be a record breaker.

Mayor Flanders has announced that he wil sign the bill authorizing the new bridge over the Merrimock river, although there is no special hurry in the matter. The mayor is satisfied with the understanding that the county commissioners will locate the bridge where the public desires it.

Samuel E. Miller, for the past four years ticket agent at the Boston and Maine railroad station at Beverly, has been promoted to the position of operator at A station, Boston, in the dispatcher's office for the eastern division. Willias Lefavor, for some time clerk at the Salem office, has been made ticket agent at Beverly.

Salem's sewer, the alleged North river nuisance, was discussed before the state board of health at Boston, Thursday, upon the petition of that city's sewer commission for an approval of the plans of Engineer Ernest I. Bowditch for an out-fall at Great Haste ledge, Salem bay, in accordance with the previous report of the state board itself.

Engineer Andrews of the company constructing the new bridge, was in Newburyport the other afternoon and has concluded that the closing of the old bridge to put on the new draw at the present time would be a great inconvenience to the citizens of Newburyport and to the general public, and he has decided not to close the bridge until after Labor day.

The total number of arrests at Salem in June, according to the monthly statement of City Marshal Field, was 194, of which 146 were for drunkenness, against 78 total and 37 drunkenness in the corresponding month in 1902. The arrests in the aggregate exceeded the number made in June in more than 10 years, and in no month in the history of the city previous to the year current were so many arrests made for drunkenness.

Two teams collided near the Lynn line on Lynn street in Peabody, Monday with sufficient force to kill a horse. A heavy wagon like a market wagon, the driver of which was on his right side, was run into by two men in a light buggy, and the shaft of the market wagon, penetrated the horse which struck it, far enough to kill him, although the horse broke away from the carriage and ran against a wall, where he dropped.

The Lynn Central Labor Union, with which all the unions of the city connected with the American Federation of Labor are affiliated, has decided to make no public demonstration on the occasion of Labor day. On the other hand all of the unions affiliated with the Knights of Labor and with the Lynn Labor Council and the Trade and Labor Alliance are making preparations for a monster parade to be followed by sports.

The striking carpenters at Swampscott have returned to work. The foremen, against whom objections were directed, has joined the union.

Mayor Flanders of Haverhill says that he will approve the act for the new bridge across the river at that city but he adds that he will not hurry about signing the order.

The school committee of Lynn had a long drawn out and tedious session, Monday in which the supply department was attacked and the agent, Edward A. Perkins, charged with lax methods.

Newburyport day will be celebrated at Newburyport and at Salisbury beach on Aug. 17. A river carnival will be held at Newburyport and at Salisbury beach elaborate exercises have been planned.

A prominent Lynn man left his vest at a Chinese laundry to be washed. On second thought, he hastened to the laundry and rescued a roll of bills from the garment, which at that time was in the washtub.

John Doyle, who claims a residence at Beverly Farms, went to Lynn Sunday and thereby hangs a tale. John fell in with boon companions and wine, whiskey and women made it interesting for the company.

Martin Ryan, who gave his residence at Boston, was arrested on the arrival of the 9.14 train at Manchester, Tuesdya, by Chief of Police Peabody on a charge preferred by Conductor Goss of evading his fare. Ryan was before the court yesterday.

"I believe," writes Mr. Labouchere, "I was responsible for his marriage to the widow of Mr. Goodwin, the architect. She was a remarkable pretty woman and very agreeable, and both she and he were thorough behemians.

"I was dining with them and some others one evening at Earl's court. They were obviously greatly attracted to each other and in a vague sort of way they thought of marrying, so I took the matter in hand to bring things to a practical point.

"'Jimmy,' I said, 'will you marry Mrs. Goodwin?'

"'Certainly,' he replied.

"'Mrs. Goodwin,' I said will you marry Jimmy?'

"'Certainly,' she replied.

"'When?' I asked.

"'Oh, some day,' said Whistler.

"'That won't do,' I said; we must have a date.'

"So they both agreed I should choose the day, tell them what church to come to for the ceremony, provide a clergman and give the bride away.

"I fixed an early date and got them the chaplain of the house of commons to perform the ceremony. It took place a few days later. After the ceremony was over we adjourned to Whistler's studio, where he had prepared to banquet. The banquet was on the table, but there were no chairs, so we sat on packing cases. The happy pair when I left had not quite decided whether they would go that evening to Paris or remain in the studio.

"How unpractical they were was shown when I happened to meet the bride the day before the marriage in the street.

"'Don't forget tomorrow,' I said.

"'No,' she replied; 'I am just going to buy my trousseau.'

"'A little late for that, is it not?' I asked?

"'No,' she answered; 'for I am only going to buy a tooth brush and a new sponge, as one ought to have new ones when one marries.'

'However, there never was a more successful marriage. They adored each other and lived most happily together, and when she died he was broken-hearted indeed. He never recovered from the loss."

DYSENTERY CURED WITHOUT THE AID OF A DOCTOR.

"I am just up from a hard spell of the flux," (dysentery) says Mr. T. A. Pinner, a well known merchant of Drummond, Tenn. "I used one small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and was cured without having a doctor. I consider it the best cholera medicine in the world." There is no need of employing a doctor when this remedy is used, for no doctor can prescribe a better medicine for bowel complaint in any form either for children or adults. It never fails and is pleasant to take. For sale by E. M. & W. A. Allen.

WHISTLER OPPOSED CANT.

The late J. A. McNeill Whistler opposed every sort of cant. He championed on the other hand, many peculiar things. He believed, for instance, in cosmetics and encouraged women always in the use of rouge, rice powder, kohl and henna.

He liked, in this connection, to tell about a rebuff he once heard a young girl administer to a bishop. The bishop somehow or other, had discovered the young girl in the act of curling her hair with a heated silver rod, and he said to her:

"My dear young lady, if God intended your hair to be curled, he would curl it himself."

She rejoined:

"He did curl it when I was a little girl, but now that I am grown up He thinks I am able to look after it myself."—Boston Post.

THE SUPPLY OF FUEL OIL.

The whole question of the economy of oil burning for power purposes ultimately turns upon the price of oil at the wells, and the available annual supply. In a general way, the price of Pennsylvania oil controls the price of nearly all the other crude oils, and they fluctuate as it fluctuates, the relative price always remaining practically constant and depending on the relative values for refining. At the present time with Pennsylvania oil selling in the neighborhood of $1.50 per barrel at the wells, Ohio and Indiana oils are worth only about $1.00 and 95 cents respectively. This is because of the sulphur in the latter oils, which makes the process of refining difficult, and also because of the smaller percentage of the light oils valuable for illuminating which they contain. The quality of the California crude oil varies very greatly according to the location of the wells, some of it being excellent for refining purposes and some of it being almost worthless and suitable only for fuel. The range of prices at the wells, therefore, is correspondingly great, varying from 20 or 25 cents per barrel to about $1.00, with a present average value of 55c at the wells. The value of Texas oil for refining is very little indeed in fact, almost nothing. It contains little or no naptha, which is the most valuable constituent in the Pennsylvania oil, and while it contains a reasonable percentage of kerosene, this is of somewhat uncertain character and produces an illuminating oil of an inferior grade. If its price were to depend on its refining value, it would be very low.

The supply of oil which is available for fuel, therefore, is, first the small percentage (probably not over 2 per cent. or 3 per cent.) of the total production of the Pennsylvania and Ohio oil—the residum from the process of refling; second, crude oil from the Ohio and Indiana fields wherever the price of coal makes the burning of oil 95 cents or $1.00 per barrel (plus freight) profitable; third, those portions of the California oil which are not best suitable for for refining; fourth, practically the entire output of the Texas oil field.—A. L. Williston, in The Engineering Magazine for August.

Napoleon Hayward, "emperor of the Paris camelots," has been frustrated by the London police in his mission to England, which, to use his own words, was "to assist at the auspicious moment of the French President's visit in bringing about a political and amicable rapprochement between England and France."

The unaccredited ambassador of the Paris street vendors is accomplished by a "suite" of seven, who, as their expenses are being defrayed by their chief, not unnaturally take a more cheerful view of their visit than does M. Hayward himself. Up to last night the singing of the specially composed songs in which "the emperor" had reposed such faith, internationally and financially, had failed to produce the steamship fares. Not that the street audiences are unresponsive, but the police move them on as soon as they have assumed lucrative porportions.

"Ah, your policemen!" exclaimed M. Hayward. "He is a 'baton de reglise,' (A stick of licorice.) But perhaps he does not appreciate my songs—eh?" and the vocalist-diplomat sang to a merry air a verse which, translated runs:

We have a lot of things to show,
That in France you never know,
A Brodrick Army corps—I hope
Your'll bring your microscope!

M. Hayward is surprised that the government should have omitted to make special arrangements whereby he could have pursued his "mission" untrammeled by the policemen. London he thinks, is immense, but is astonished that the population is so large, "for," he added, "the traffic must kill off many in a year." Asked what had impressed him most in the city, Hayward replied: "Your waiters. I enter a restaurant and call for a glass of claret, but the waiter holds on to the glass and bottle until he has my money. Do you not always pay, you English?" he asked, laughing. "And then your camelots—my colleagues of England. I see a man running wildly and screaming. I run after him looking for the fire. But he is only 'a special edition.'"

The famous singer of the boulevards, whose first visit to England this is, set himself to learn English before leaving Paris, and his vocabulary consisis of "One penny," "Splendeed," and and "Oh, yes!"

Mr Hayward was mightily impressed with the appearance of the King. His Majesty is "quite le Roi Soleil' and the embodiment of what I have imagined in my dreams the old Carlovingian kings of France must have been."

At the moment of his departure for France, M. Napoleon Hayward writes to The Daily Mail an amusing letter, in which he says: "They (his companions) have now left for Dover, where I will have them photographed in a group and send you a copy." He concludes:

Vive l'Angleterre!
Vive la France! !
A bas les policemen ! ! !

VOICE OF HIS CHIDHOOD.

It is a good story, and Mrs. Brown had to tell it—confidentially. Then it leaked, until Mr. Brown himself heard of its true inwardness, and since then he has found no fault with his crying baby.

"Charlie (that's Mr. Brown) was awfully annoyed by the crying of our dear little Tommy," said Mrs. Brown, "and the fact is that his complaining was harder to endure than the baby's howls. Finally I had an inspiration.

"One morning, at the agonizing hour of 4 o'clock, Charlie was awakened by a most unearthly baby yelling and screaming, and sat up in bed with a start.

"'Can't you stop that baby?" he demanded. 'Did you ever in your life before hear such a racket from a pair of lungs? I don't think that there ever was a mortal, or an immortal, who made such an earsplitting, sleep destroying noise since babies were invented until this blessed moment.'

"'Yes there was, Charlie,' I answered, quite calmly, "and you were that very baby. I have prepared a lesson for you. You are now listening to your own voice.'

"'You are crazy!' he exclaimed.

"'Not a bit, I replied. 'When you were the age of Tommy you were just such a howling terror as he is, and for future use your mother set up a phonograph to preserve your voice. She sent me the cylinder yesterday, and you will find it in our graphophone.

"He made no audible reply, but he did apparently mutter something under his breath, and then turned over and went to sleep. He hasn't complained of Tommy's voice since, and it has not occurred to him that there was no such a thing as a phonograph until long after he was a baby."—New York Herald.

THE ARMY ENGINEER IN THE PHILIPPINES.

A finely macadamized road, about thirty-six miles long, has been built from Calamba to Batangas in the provinces of Laguna and Batangas and another, about twenty miles long in the province of Albay. Extensive road and bridge construction has been carried on in the provinces of Pangasinan, Bataan, Nueva Ecija, Pampanga, and South Camarines—in fact there are few provinces in Luzon where valuable work has not been done on the roads and lines of cummunication. In all, something like nine hundred miles of road have been built or improved in Luzon. In many cases this required the construction of extensive causeways through rice marshes.

For the purpose of housing troops in permanent garrisons, sites for the new military stations have been surveyed and mapped, arrangement of buildings designed and water and sewerage systems investigated and planned. A careful examination of the islands of the archipelago for coal has been made. A wharf has been built at Zamboanga, and others are being built by the engineers at several different ports. Plans and estimates for the deepening of several river mouths have been made, and the port of Manila is now being extensively improved under the supervision of army engineers.

The civil engineering work in the city of Manila, a city of over 300,000 people, has been largely designed and executed under army engineers, including the building of new public markets of steel a new steel bridge over the Pasig River, a public crematory, and model tenements.

The work of the engineers in the Philippines is just commencing, and many excellent opportunities are already beginning to show themselves. Railroads and street trainways must be built, coal and other mincrals mined Manila must have a new water supply and a sewerage system; other towns must have the same, and the construction of roads and bridges must be continued.

As soon as the future control of the islands becomes more settled, and the permanency and wisdom of the present government is sufficiently assured to warrant investment of capital and the extensive introduction of modern machinery to develop the industrial and mineral resources of the islands, an attractive and profitable field will be opened for members of the engineering profession.—Capt. W. W. Harts, in the Engineering Magazine for August.

NOT OVER-WISE.

There is an old allegorical picture of a girl scared at a grass-hopper, but in the act of heedlessly treading on a snake. This is paralleled by the man who spends a large sum of money building a cyclone cellar, but neglects to provide his family with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy as a safeguard against bowel complaints, whose victims outnumber those of the cyclone a hundred to one. This remedy is everywhere recognized as the most prompt and reliable medicine in use for these diseases. For sale by E. M. & W. A. Allen.

Attempts to regulate the "street car hog" by city ordinances have usually failed. Being impervious to the ordinary appeals of decency and good manners, it follows that he is not easily reached by municipal enactments. City councils have tried to make him clean his feet before stepping into a car to refrain from expectoration and profanity, and to observe various other decencies that are foreign to his porcine nature.

And now Toledo is after a new one—the "seat-end hog." An ordinance has been introduced in the city council of that city which provides that a person who takes a seat on a street car where the seats run crosswise shall, when another person enters, "move over and keep moving as passengers enter until the seat is filled." The penalty for refusing to "move over" is fixed at from $5 to $25 fine.

The ordinance if enforced would no doubt facilitate the loading of a street car. But it must not be forgotten that people who get on to a street car are not bags of flour or carcasses of mutton. They are not greatly interested in the freight-carrying capacity of the car. Moreover, the question arises, is the passenger who refuses to "move over" a "street car hog?" If he gets to a seat first, isn't he entitled to choice of position? Suppose he is on the "shady side" of a car, must he move over into the sun and allow a tardy comer to sit in the seat he has selected?

It will be seen that serious questions of priority and ethics enter into the consideration of the proposed ordinance. It may be that the person who prefers to sit in the end of the seat has a "squatter's right" to it through priority of occupation. It may be that he isn't a "hog" after all. In any event we can see whole carloads of trouble headed for Toledo if an attempt is made to enforce such an ordinance. Chicago Record Herald.

CURE FOR HAY FEVER

E. M. & W. A. Allen Say Hyomei Will Give Relief—Sold Under Guarantee.

The season for hay fever is almost at hand and many people feel that they will be obliged to leave town in order to avoid the sneezing, watery eyes and other annoying symptoms of this disagreeable summer disease.

E. M. & W. A. Allen wish us to announce that when Hyomei is used, either as a preventive or cure, there will be no hay fever. They advise the use of Hyomei daily for two or three weeks before the usual time for the annual appearance of hay fever. In this way the attack will be prevented. If, however, the preventive treatment was not started soon enough and the disease comes on, use Hyomei six or seven times daily and also rub Hyomei Balm thoroughly into the nostrils both morning and night. This treatment will relieve at once and give a speedy and permanent cure.

Hyomei actually brings into your home, a climate filled with ozone and healing balsams, the same air that one breathes at the White Mountains or other health resorts.

There is no stomach dosing when Hyomei is used. It is Nature's own method for curing all diseases of the respiratory organs and is breathed through a neat pocket inhaler that accompanies every outfit, so that the medicated air reaches the minutest air cells, killing all germs and soothing and healing the irritated mucous membrane.

It is the one treatment for hay fever where E. M. & W. A. Allen guarantee to refund the money if it does not give satisfaction. All who are subject to hay fever should begin its use at once so as to prevent the disease.

These cars will start from Railroad square on Saturday morning at 7 o'clock and will arrive at the beach in the vicinity of 10 o'clock. So far about 110 persons have signified their intention of going and have purchased tickets. The men are taking their wives and children and the cars will be filled with a 'olly crowd. On the return the cars will start from the beach at 8 o'clock and will arrive here in town at about 11 o'clock. The committee of young ladies who have put this affair on foot deserve much credit for their work. They are Miss Nellie Murphy, chairman and treasurer; Miss Eva Strout and Miss Mary Keenan.

YACHTING AT LAKE COCHICHEWICK.

Saturday evening was an ideal night for boating on Lake Cochichewick and quite a few took advantage of it. The full moon shone down clear and bright upon the water making a glittering golden path upon the rippling surface. There was a fine breeze upon the lake which might not have been noticed on the land and this made yachting a pleasure. Numerous craft were about. Launches passed here and there and canoes glided silently along. A party on board the yacht Carolyn passed the evening pleasantly. The wind from the west carried the yacht on each tack down the lake and then back again to Osgoods cove. The party with Capt. Herbert E. McQueston at the helm sang many familiar and popular songs to while away the time. Those of the party were: Capt. McQuestion, Rob Clements, 1st mate; Herbert E. Hosmer, 2nd mate; M. H. White, steward; J. Gerald Miller, lookout, and George S. Miller, coxswain.

BLUE STOCKINGS PUT UP FINE GAME.

The Blue Stockings put up a good proposition of baseball on Saturday at Tewksbury against the strong team of the doctors of the State Almshouse in that town. They were defeated however, the score being 6 to 3 in favor of the physicians. The local boys made the trip from town in a barge furnished by Fred L. Sargent. They had a pleasant trip over the road and reached Tewksbury in good season. There were a number of the members of the club who accompanied the team in the barge. Others went by electrics. A large crowd witnessed the game. The doctors gave the Blues a very pleasant greeting and paid them the compliment of being the strongest team they have met this year.

The score of the game by innings is as follows:

Innings,	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
B. Stockings	0	0	0	2	0	0	1	0	0—3
Doctors	0	1	1	0	0	0	4	0	x—6

The lineup of the two teams was as follows:

Doctors—Drake ss, Holmes p, Rokes c, Billings 1b, Bucklin 2b, Gardner 3b, Tyson and Kelly lf, Rowe cf, Lawley rf.

Blue Stockings—Johnson cf, Geaney 1b, Kelley c, Domings ss, Hargraves 2b, Stark p, Clements 3b Wrigley lf and Curley rf.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY PARTY

Little Laurence Donnelly, the youngest son of Mrs. Mary Donnelly of Sutton street, passed one of the happiest days of his young life on Wednesday, when together with his playmates he observed the sixth anniversary of his birth. The affair was held early on Wednesday evening and was a complete and happy one. His mother took charge of the preparation for the party and saw that all had a good time. The little fellow is a bright and light hearted chap and promises to be a big man some day.

A large birthday cake was made for the occasion and in candy on its top, appeared, "Laurence Donnelly, Aged 6 Years." The young host received several nice birthday remembrances. Ice cream and cake, candy and fruit was served to the young people gathered. The time was passed in playing games and other amusements. Those present were Misses Lena Blanchard of Somerville, Frances Walsh of Lawrence, Lizzie Bamford, Frances Tiney, Hanna Donnelly and Hannah Heaphey, Masters John Heaphey, William Anderson, Joseph Bamford, Thomas Winkley and the host.

The Mania for the Trolley.

It seems to be part of the summer scheme of things to get away as far as possible and as often as possible from the particular place where one is supposed to be settled for the season.

This restless spirit is better than the apathetic content which nails many women to a piazza from June to October, but it is not exactly complimentary to the place where one is supposed to "abide."

The trolley car that dashes along the country roads has done much to encourage this gregarious tendency on the part of the summer resorters. One woman has a perfect mania for trolley parties. She has maps and plans and tables of fares and names of hotels—she calls them all "inns"—and she talks with the persuasive eloquence of an Italian guide (when he is showing you the wrong "sight," because the one you think he is showing you is farther away than he care to walk), when she is trying to induce you to join a party she is forming to spend the day at Worcester or to trolley to Salem and back before dinner.

The trolley fiend loves the rush and movement of rolling through the comtry air. She doesn't mind the fat woman with the cross baby wedged in beside her. She doesn't care if the laborer does put his pick and shovel clase against her sun-pleated skirt. She thinks the flying car a great improvement upon a horse and less dangerous than an automobile, and cheaper even than walking, because walking ruin's one's duck shoes and makes one's skirts so dusty and gives one such an insatiable thirst for ice cream, soda and such an appetite for sandwiches and cakes.

The trollied woman is not a temperate enthusiast in most instances, but she is tremendously in earnest, and her hobby seems to make life interesting to her, so who can blame her for living in cars and studying transfer slips and routes during most of her walking moments? The fad is a healhy one and not extravagant.

But it is amusing to hear her say, "I am spending the summer at Blankville," for she isn't, and she knows she isn't.

WEAK IN THE ALPHABET.

Some Letters That Men Can Never Learn to Make.

"Why is it that with some men some letters of the alphabet are harder to make than others and, in fact, that there are some letters that some men never learned how to make?" asked a young man who takes considerable interest in the matter of handwriting in the New Orleans Times-Democrat. "It is a rather singular fact that nearly every man outside of the experts is weak on one or more of the letters in the English alphabet. Sometimes the letter involved is a capital letter; sometimes it is of the smaller kind; sometimes it is one letter and sometimes another. In any event, you will find few men who are exempt from the failing referred to.

"I know of one man who in spite of the fact that he does a great deal of writing has never learned how to make a capital P. He simply makes a stagger at it, and, as a rule, the result of his efforts will look more like a small p than like the capital P. I know another man who can't make a small f to save his life. He can never get the lower part of the letter below the line. He makes it look like a clubfooted b instead of an f. There are others who, when they try to make the small b, give it the long shank, and it looks more like the letter f. It is rather singular that these traits should hang on to a man's writing for a lifetime, but they do it just the same, and if you make a few inquiries among your friends and acquaintances you will find that but few of them are exempt from this fault.

"It is very much like the habit of spelling certain words incorrectly. Many men who are rated as first class spellers pass through life without ever in a single instance spelling certain words correctly. It is due to habit largely. If you should ask them how to spell the word, they would tell you, but, when they go to write it, that is quite different, and they will get it wrong every time. So they know, too, how certain letters should be made, but they simply can't put them down on paper. It is a curious but common fault."

Disorder.

I distrust both the intellect and the morality of those people to whom disorder is of no consequence—who can live at ease in an Augean stable. What surrounds us reflects more or less that which is within us. The mind is like one of those dark lanterns which in spite of everything still throw some light around. If our tastes did not reveal our character they would be no longer tastes, but instincts.—Emile Souvestre.

Wonderful Financing.

First Sport—Dickson is a wonderful financier.

Second Sport—How?

First Sport—He borrowed a nickel from me this morning to take him up town to see a man that he could borrow $5 from, and with that $5 he blew off another man that he borrowed $50 from.—Exchange.

CHATS WITH WOMEN.

It seems strange that with all the water around Boston there should be such a thing as a Boston girl who cannot swim. If she only knew what a grace-giving, health-bestowing, beautifying exercise it is she would practice in a tank all winter in order to be expert in summer.

If she knew that swimming gives aplomb and confidence to the swimmer out of water as well as in the waves, and if she could only see herself hopping up and down, climbing to a rope, she would take swimming lessons at once. It's bad enough to sit on the beach, but it is unpardonable for a young woman to clutch a rope and jump up and down and squeal.

If she weights 300 or had a wooden leg or was 75 and feeble there might be some excuse for the performance, but to see a girl who can ride a wheel and dance till the stars go to sleep wade into the sea and refuse to let go of the rope from the time the water touches her knees till she comes out to dress is a most disillusioning sight.

A summer girl who isn't aquatic or at least amphibious is only half a summer girl. Learn to swim is the best advice she could be given.

Have false curls sewed in your silk kerchief if you will; use rice powder to ward off sunburn (which it won't), wear the prettiest and most opera-bouffe costume on the beach if you like, but—learn to swim.

Remember that all the beautiful women of olden times were fond of waters. Diana thought nothing of swimming a river, and Leander gave Hero lessons in breasting the waves before he was drowned in the Hellespont.

When a certain outree lady named Phryne bathed in the sea the whole city took a day off and turned out to see her, and Aphrodite, who was a much advertised a beauty as Lillian Russell, had a great deal to thank the sea for. Indeed, if it had not been for the sea, where would Aphrodite have been?

And if it hadn't been for Aphrodite, where would Cupid be?

And if it were not for Cupid, where on earth would be the flavor of your existence, oh! summer girl?

"The habits of reverence, gentleness, courtesy, honesty, courage and patience like their opposites, are absorbed by the child from those with whom he is most closely associated," says Mrs. Theodore Birney. "It is in these attributes that an ounce of example outweights a ton of precept.

It is a charming custom to lose no opportunity either in reading fiction or in the circumstances attending on everyday living to express an enthusiastic appreciation of the good, the noble, beautiful and true, but valuable beyond and above all discussion of these virtues is, 'To be as nearly as we can what we wish our children to be.'"

DYSENTERY CURED WITHOUT THE AID OF A DOCTOR

"I am just up from a hard spell of the flux," (dysentery) says Mr. T. A. Pinner, a well known merchant of Drummond, Tenn. "I used one small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and was cured without having a doctor. I consider it the best cholera medicine in the world." There is no need of employing a doctor when this remedy is used, for no doctor can prescribe a better medicine for bowel complaint in any form either for children or adults. It never fails and is pleasant to take. For sale by E. M. & W. A. Allen.
